

Medical Oncologists at The Bays

Dr Muhammad (Alam) Alamgeer

MEDICAL ONCOLOGIST | MBBS, MRCP, FRACP

Dr Muhammad (Alam) Alamgeer is a medical oncologist with an interest in all solid tumours including breast, lung and gastrointestinal tumours. He also has an interest in research and has dedicated time to his particular interest in bio-marker discovery and cancer stem cells, several clinical trials and is an active member of many multi-disciplinary teams at Monash Health and Peter MacCallum Cancer Centre. Alam commenced private consulting at The Bays Hospital in October 2015. He was actively involved in the development of the medical oncology and chemotherapy service at The Bays Hospital. Alam completed his basic physician training in the United Kingdom prior to permanently migrating to Australia in 2006. He completed his Australian training at The Northern Hospital, Austin Health and Western Health and his Oncology Fellowship at Peter MacCallum Cancer Centre and Monash Health.

CONTACT

03 5970 5333

Dr Katherine Geddes

MEDICAL ONCOLOGIST | MBBS, FRACP, GRAD CERT CLINICAL RESEARCH (ONCOLOGY)

Dr Katherine Geddes is a medical oncologist with a particular clinical interest in treating breast cancer and upper and lower gastrointestinal cancers. Katherine graduated from Monash University Medicine in 2005. She completed her basic physician training with Monash Health and Medical Oncology training at Peninsula Health, St Vincent's Hospital and Monash Health. She is a member of the Medical Oncology Group of Australia, American Society of Clinical Oncology, European Society of Medical Oncology, Australasian Gastrointestinal Trials Group ANZ Breast Cancer Trials Group.

CONTACT

03 8740 1040

Dr Joanne Lundy

MEDICAL ONCOLOGIST | MBBS, FRACP

Dr Joanne Lundy is a medical oncologist with particular interest in breast and GI oncology. Joanne graduated from the University of Adelaide with a Bachelor of Medicine/Bachelor of Surgery in 2007. She then came to Melbourne and completed her basic physician training at Monash Health, before training as a Medical Oncologist via the Victorian Medical Oncology Training Program. Joanne gained fellowship of the Royal Australasian College of Physicians and is an active member of the Medical Oncology Group of Australia and the American Society of Clinical Oncology. Joanne also works as the Clinical Research Fellow in the Monash Health Translation Precinct, predominantly in early phase clinical trials.

CONTACT

03 5970 5333

CONTACT

03 9879 6570

Dr Simone Steel

MEDICAL ONCOLOGIST | B.Med, FRACP

Dr Simone Steel is a general medical oncologist with particular interests in gastrointestinal and lung cancer and will be regularly available at The Bays Hospital in Mornington for private patient consultation from July 2014. Simone graduated from Newcastle University in 1998 and completed advanced training in medical oncology in 2008 as part of the Victorian Oncology Training Programme. This involved rotations through various hospitals in Victoria including Box Hill Hospital and Royal Melbourne Hospital. She completed a clinical research fellowship with Austin Health in 2008 focusing on clinical trials and commenced private practice in Frankston in 2011. Simone currently has a public hospital appointment with Eastern Health which commenced in 2012 and is an adjunct lecturer at Monash University with involvement in medical student teaching. Simone lives permanently on the Mornington Peninsula with her family and is dedicated to providing quality, individualized care for her patients.